— OBSERV Should es el pretérito de shall (see SHALL). El verbo auxiliar should puede contraerse cuando le antecede un pronombre personal: I'd, we'd. Si va seguido por la negación not puede formar con ella la palabra shouldn't: I shouldn't do it, shouldn't we go?

— OBSERV En la primera persona del potencial would sustituye frecuentemente a should: I would have arrived earlier if...

— OBSERV Cuando should se encuentra en una oración que expresa una condición o una finalidad, el verbo que acompaña tiene que ir en subjuntivo en español: should he come, he would be welcome si viniera sería bienvenido; he gave me an umbrella so that I should not get wet me dio un paraguas para que no me mojara. Lo mismo ocurre en los casos en que se halla en una oración subordinada precedida por la expresión de un sentimiento: I am astonished that he should say that me extraña que diga eso.

RESUMEN DE GRAMÁTICA INGLESA

El alfabeto inglés

El alfabeto inglés consta de 26 letras:

a	b	c	d	e	f	g	h	i	j	k
ei	bi:	si:	di:	i:	ef	dʒi:	eɪtʃ	ai	dʒei	kei
l	m	n	o	p	q	r	s	t	u
el	em	en	əu	pi:	kju:	ɑ:*	es	ti:	ju:
v	w	x	y	z
vi:	ˈdʌbəlju:	eks	wai	zed

Pronunciación

Algunas de las letras inglesas representan más de un sonido y para poder reproducirlos oralmente de la manera más exacta posible se ha colocado entre corchetes, después de cada vocablo, simple o compuesto, la pronunciación figurada que le corresponde según el Alfabeto Fonético Internacional (véase pág. VI, 2.^a parte). La pronunciación varía mucho según las regiones y los países de habla inglesa. Este diccionario se limita a consignar la más empleada en Gran Bretaña, seguida por la norteamericana, señalada ésta por las letras us, cuando difiere de la primera.

El acento tónico principal queda indicado por una virgulilla colocada en el ángulo superior de la sílaba acentuada y el acento tónico secundario por otra situada en el ángulo inferior (periodic [ˌpiəriˈɒdɪk]). Se ha empleado el guión para reemplazar la parte común que tienen varias palabras seguidas.

Consonantes

1. b. Es semejante a la b inicial española (ball, cab) y es muda en algunas palabras delante de t (debt).

2. c. Se pronuncia como la c española en casa (cat, colour, cluster).

Suena como una s ante e, i (certify, civilian).

El grupo ch tiene el mismo sonido que la ch española en vocablos como chair, beach, archbishop, etc., pero tiene el sonido de k en Christmas, chemist, chiropodist, etc.

3. d. Tiene un sonido parecido a la d española en caldo (do, paid, rodent).

4. f. Es casi igual a la f española (favour, if), excepto en la preposición of en la cual se pronuncia como una v.

El grupo ph tiene el mismo sonido (physics).

5. g. Ante a, o, u, precediendo otra consonante, excepto n, o al final de una palabra, se pronuncia como la g de gato (gap, go, gust, glance, bog, peg).

Cuando va seguida por e, i, además del sonido anterior (get, give), puede tener el de la y argentina (gender, gin).

Delante de n es muda (gnarl).

6. h. Se asemeja a la jota, aunque su sonido es mucho más suave (horse).

Es muda en hour, honour, honest, heir.

7. j. Suena como una d seguida por la y argentina (job, justice).

8. k. Es semejante a la k española (kind, keep).

Delante de n es muda (knowledge, knife).

9. l. Simple o doble, se pronuncia como la l española (life, malaria, bell, fill).

En algunas palabras, como calf, half, could, etc., es muda.

10. m. Simple o doble, es igual a la m española (mother, commerce).

En posición final y precedida de una m la n es muda (damn).

11. n. Simple o doble, tiene el mismo sonido que la n española (never, connect).

12. p. Es idéntica a la p española, pero más explosiva (people, lamp).

13. q. Combinada con la u da el sonido español de cu (quality, question, quick).

14. r. Se parece a la r de mero (run, price).

Apenas se pronuncia ante una consonante o al final de una palabra (quarter).

15. s. Simple, se pronuncia como la s española en posición inicial (some), en el plural y en la tercera persona del presente de indicativo de los verbos cuando antecede una consonante sorda (maps, cuts) y en posición final después de i, a, o, u, y (this), con algunas excepciones (has, was, as, his, flies, etc.).

Simple, la s inglesa se articula apoyando suavemente la lengua entre los dientes y haciendo vibrar fuertemente las cuerdas vocales en los plurales cuyo singular termine en vocal o consonante sonora (houses, eggs), en la tercera persona del singular de los verbos, si éstos terminan en vocal o consonante sonora, y en otras palabras en posición final cuando sigue una e no muda.

Doble, equivale a la s española (less, massive).

Es muda en algunos vocablos como isle.

Delante de ia e io la s se pronuncia como el grupo sh pero haciendo vibrar las cuerdas vocales (Asian, lesion).

El grupo sh tiene un sonido parecido a la ch española, aunque mucho más suave (should, lash).

16. t. Se asemeja a la t española, pero es ligeramente más aspirada (tide, let).

Tiene un sonido similar al de sh en términos como conception, eridental, etc.

El grupo th se pronuncia como la z española (thing, south) o aproximadamente como la d española de cada (then, with).

17. v. Es una consonante labiodental que se pronuncia apoyando los dientes superiores en el labio inferior (visit, love).

18. w. Suena como la u española (well, twenty).

Es muda delante de r (wrap).

19. x. Equivale al sonido de ks (relax) o de kz (exact).

En posición inicial se pronuncia como la z inglesa (xylophone).

20. y. Como consonante es parecida a la y española (yesterday).

21. z. Se articula apoyando suavemente la lengua entre los dientes y haciendo vibrar fuertemente las cuerdas vocales (zone, laziness).

Vocales

1. a. Suene igual que la a española en palabras como father, car, half.

Tiene un sonido breve intermedio entre la a y la e españolas en vocablos del tipo apple, man, grammar.

Es parecida al diptongo en voces como table, famous, baby.

Equivale aproximadamente a ea en términos como air, dare.

2. e. Se pronuncia como la e española de nivel en palabras como red, lesson, memory, y con un sonido un poco más oscuro en voces como verb.

Suena como una i española larga al final de una sílaba al seguir una consonante (before) o cuando es doble (tree).

Tiene el sonido de ía en here, fear, etc.

Generalmente es muda en posición final (love, glue).

3. i. Es parecida a la i española en vocablos como bit, fish, ship.

Tiene un sonido más oscuro que la e española en bird, first, sir, etc.

Se pronuncia como el diptongo ai en like, ride, arrive, etc.

4. o. Equivale a la o española (hot, dog).

Suena como la u española en do, who, move, etc., y cuando es doble (book, too), aunque existen excepciones (door, blood, etc.).

Tiene el sonido de la a española en palabras como house.

En women se pronuncia i.

5. u. Es parecida a la u española en bull, put, etc.

Tiene un sonido intermedio entre la o y la e españolas en but, much, up, etc.

Se pronuncia como el diptongo iu en voces como mature, use, etc.

6. y. Como vocal suena igual que la i española (ministry).

Diptongos y triptongos

A diferencia de lo que ocurre en español, los diptongos y triptongos no corresponden siempre a la combinación de dos o tres vocales gráficas. Por ejemplo la i de ice representa por sí sola el sonido del diptongo español ai.

Variaciones ortográficas

Existen algunas diferencias entre la ortografía británica y la norteamericana.

— al inglés -our corresponde el americano -or (labour labor);

— al inglés -re corresponde el americano -er (theatre theater), con algunas excepciones como ogre y las palabras terminadas por -cre (massacre, lucre);

- al inglés -ce corresponde el americano -se (licence license);
- al inglés -ould corresponde el americano -old (mould mold);
- al inglés -ae, -oe de ciertas palabras cultas corresponde el americano -e (haemoglobin hemoglobín; amoeba ameba);
- en cierto número de casos se duplica una consonante en inglés mientras que no se hace en americano (quarrelled quarreled; traveller traveler; waggon wagon);
- en algunas palabras la e, que existe en inglés, desaparece en americano (good-bye good-by; storey story);
- en algunas voces tomadas del francés se conserva la ortografía francesa en Gran Bretaña, pero, en Estados Unidos, se suprime la terminación átona (programme program);
- ciertos términos no se escriben de la misma manera, sin que esto obedezca a determinadas normas precisas, en los dos países (grey gray; tyre tire; fulfil fulfill; instalment installment; plough plow).

Mayúsculas

El uso de las mayúsculas es mucho más frecuente en inglés que en español. En efecto, además de los casos en que así ocurre en Castellano, se emplean con los derivados de nombres propios (Aristotelian), los sustantivos y adjetivos que indican la nacionalidad (Englishman, English), los idiomas (Spanish), los días de la semana (Monday), los meses (February), los títulos (My Lord Duke), los nombres de religiones, sectas o partidos y sus derivados (Catholicism, Mormon, Labour), el pronombre personal I y la interjección O.

Artículo

El artículo definido inglés es el mismo, the, en las formas masculina y femenina, singular o plural (the boy, the girls, the animals) y se emplea menos frecuentemente que en español.

No se debe emplear:

- con sustantivos en plural o nombres abstractos sin determinar (he is very fond of tomatoes le gustan mucho los tomates; life is difficult la vida es difícil);
- delante de man y woman usados en sentido abstracto o colectivo (Man proposes, God disposes el hombre propone y Dios dispone);
- con nombres de juegos, deportes, ocupaciones, artes, ciencias y enfermedades (chess el ajedrez; to play tennis jugar al tenis; bookkeeping la contabilidad; architecture la arquitectura; chemistry la química; measles el sarampión);
- con sustantivos que representan una materia líquida, sólida o gaseosa y con nombres de comidas en sentido general (water is useful el agua es útil; to serve lunch servir el almuerzo);
- con palabras como school, church, hospital, prison si éstas se refieren al uso que se hace de estos edificios (to go to church ir a la iglesia; I was taken to hospital me llevaron al hospital);
- con los días de la semana, las estaciones y ciertas expresiones de tiempo (he will come on Tuesday vendrá el martes; when summer arrived cuando llegó el verano; last year el año pasado; I left at two o'clock me fui a las dos);
- con idiomas y títulos (Italian is not very difficult el italiano no es difícil; Doctor Burnet el doctor Burnet; Mr Brown el señor Brown);
- con puntos cardinales en sentido absoluto y delante de un sustantivo seguido por un número cardinal (to go south ir al sur; I am in room number seven estoy en la habitación número siete).

Se debe emplear:

- delante de un sustantivo en singular al generalizar (the dog is a faithful animal el perro es un animal fiel);
- con un sustantivo determinado, en singular y en plural (the woman (that) I saw la mujer a quien vi; the books (that) you read los libros que usted leyó);
- con palabras que representan algo único (the sun, the moon, the Bible, etc.).

Se emplea asimismo:

- con ciertos adjetivos para sustantivarlos (the rich los ricos);
- delante de números ordinales en títulos y fechas (Edward the Seventh Eduardo Séptimo; May the thirteenth el trece de mayo);
- con función de adverbio (the more he gets the more he wants cuanto más tiene más quiere).

El artículo indefinido tiene la misma forma a en masculino y en femenino (a man, a woman) y sólo existe en singular. Se transforma en an delante de una palabra que empieza por vocal o h muda (an artist, an hour), excepto si se trata de u o del grupo eu con el sonido de iu (a university, a European). El plural español unos, unas se traduce por some (some interesting books unos libros interesantes). Es de uso más frecuente en inglés que en español.

Se debe emplear:

- antes de un sustantivo en singular al generalizar (a dog is a faithful animal el perro es un animal fiel);
- con un nombre que represente la nacionalidad, la profesión o la religión (he is a Spaniard es español; I am a teacher soy profesor; he was a naval officer era oficial de marina; she is a Moslem es musulmana);
- delante de un sustantivo en aposición (my friend, a teacher of languages mi amigo, profesor de idiomas);
- después de las palabras without, half, such, certain, other, as, what, hundred, thousand, million (without a jacket sin chaqueta; half an apple media manzana; it gave me such a fright! ¡me dio tal susto!; a certain day cierto día; another cup of tea otra taza de té; he came as an observer vino en calidad de observador; what a pity! ¡qué lástima!; a hundred houses cien casas; a thousand men mil hombres; a million pounds un millón de libras);
- en expresiones de tiempo, de precio y de velocidad (once a year una vez al año; two shillings a pound dos chelines por libra, dos chelines la libra; one hundred miles an hour cien millas por hora).

Sustantivo

Género

Suelen ser masculinos los sustantivos que designan a varones o animales machos, profesiones, títulos o empleos desempeñados por hombres.

Son generalmente femeninos los sustantivos que representan a personas del sexo opuesto a las anteriores o animales hembras, profesiones, títulos o empleos desempeñados por mujeres.

Son neutros todos los demás, con la excepción de ship, engine, aeroplane and car, que se consideran femeninos la mayoría de las veces.

Hay que señalar que parent se aplica al padre y a la madre, cousin al primo y a la prima y que child y baby se clasifican muy frecuentemente entre los neutros.

Formación del femenino

El femenino se forma de las tres maneras siguientes:

- con la terminación -ess (heir, heiress; lion, lioness);
- con una palabra distinta (boy, girl; cock, hen);
- con un sustantivo compuesto (milkman, milkmaid; manservant, maidservant; he-goat, she-goat);
- con el adjetivo female (male friend, female friend).

Existe también el sufijo -ine (hero, heroine), pero su uso es menos frecuente.

Formación del plural

El plural se forma generalmente añadiendo -s al singular (book, books; plate, plates). Esta s es sorda después de p, t, k, f, th y sonora cuando sigue una vocal o una consonante distinta de las anteriormente mencionadas,

- los sustantivos terminados en -s, -ss, -sh, -ch, -x, -z añaden -es, en plural (gases, classes, dishes, churches, boxes, topazes);
- los que acaban en -o precedida de consonante añaden -es en plural (potatoes), con algunas excepciones (pianos, photos, banjos, tobaccos);
- los terminados en -o precedida de vocal toman sólo una -s en plural (radios);
- los acabados en -y cambian esta terminación en -ies cuando la letra anterior es una consonante (skies) y añaden simplemente una -s si es una vocal (days);
- algunas palabras terminadas en -f o -fe cambian su terminación en -ves (leaves, knives), mientras que otras, con las mismas características, sólo toman una -s (roofs, safes);
- ciertos sustantivos forman el plural añadiendo -en o -ren (ox, oxen; child, children). El plural de brother es brothers cuando significa «hermano de sangre» y brethren si tiene el sentido de «miembro de una comunidad»;
- otros sufren un cambio en la vocal interna (man, men; woman, women; tooth, teeth; goose, geese; foot, feet; louse, lice; mouse, mice);
- algunos conservan la misma forma en singular y en plural (aircraft, deer, grouse, sheep, salmon, swine, trout);
- ciertas palabras de origen extranjero se usan con el plural de origen (datum, data; analysis, analyses), aunque algunas pueden también tener un plural regular (memorandum, memoranda o memorandums);
- varios sustantivos compuestos de cantidad son invariables cuando se usan como adjetivos (a five mile walk, a five-pound note);

- algunos no tienen singular (scissors, trousers, etc.) y otros como means, news se emplean como si fueran singulares;
- los acabados en -ics pueden usarse en singular o en plural (physics, politics, etc.), aunque el empleo del singular sea más frecuente;
- los nombres compuestos añaden la terminación del plural solamente a la palabra principal (son-in-law, sons-in-law), excepto si están formados con man o woman como prefijo (manservant, men-servants).

Caso posesivo

El caso posesivo o genitivo se emplea para expresar la posesión o la pertenencia, cuando el poseedor es un ser animado o capaz de ser personificado, y con algunos nombres que indican tiempo, medida, espacio o precio. Se forma invirtiendo los términos de la frase y añadiendo un apóstrofo y una s al poseedor seguidos de lo poseído sin artículo (Peter's book el libro de Pedro; at a mile's distance a una distancia de una milla; an hour's walk un paseo de una hora; England's navy la marina inglesa).

Si el poseedor está en plural, no se pone la s (the girls' school la escuela de las chicas), excepto si no acaba en s (the children's bedroom el dormitorio de los niños).

Cuando los poseedores son varios se aplica la forma del caso posesivo únicamente al último (Peter and John's bedroom el dormitorio de Pedro y Juan).

Se omiten frecuentemente las palabras house, shop y church después del caso posesivo (I am at my brother's estoy en casa de mi hermano; have you been to the baker's? ¿fuiste a la panadería?; he goes to mass to St Peter's va a misa a (la iglesia de) San Pedro).

Adjetivo

El adjetivo suele anteponerse al sustantivo. Tiene la misma forma en singular y plural y en masculino y femenino (an expensive book un libro caro; expensive books libros caros; a tall boy un chico alto; a tall girl una chica alta).

Los adjetivos demostrativos constituyen una excepción y varían en plural (this woman esta mujer; these women estas mujeres; that man ese hombre; those men esos hombres).

Adjetivo calificativo

El adjetivo calificativo con función de atributo se coloca siempre antes del sustantivo (I have a blue pencil tengo un lápiz azul).

En cambio, debe ir después del sustantivo que califica:

- cuando se usa como predicado (my pencil is blue mi lápiz es azul);
- si queda determinado por un complemento (a glass full of water un vaso lleno de agua);
- al calificar los pronombres terminados por -thing o -body (something new algo nuevo);
- cuando se trata de un adjetivo que empieza por -a, como asleep, afraid, aware, alive, ashamed, alone (the fastest man alive el hombre más rápido del mundo);
- en algunos casos especiales como court martial, heir apparent, from time immemorial.

El adjetivo no se puede usar solo y requiere siempre la presencia de un sustantivo o del pronombre indefinido one, ones (he has a black coat and a blue one tiene un abrigo negro y otro blanco).

Se emplea como sustantivo al designar un idioma (to teach Spanish enseñar (el) español) y al representar una palabra abstracta o un grupo de personas, en cuyos casos va siempre precedido por el artículo definido the (the ideal lo ideal; the rich los ricos).

En inglés, un sustantivo califica a veces otro, teniendo así función de adjetivo (house agent agente inmobiliario).

Comparativos y superlativos

El comparativo de igualdad se forma con as... as en oraciones afirmativas (she is as tall as her mother es tan alta como su madre) y con not as... as o not so... as en frases negativas (he is not as tall as his father no es tan alto como su padre).

El comparativo y el superlativo de superioridad se forman con more y most respectivamente o con las terminaciones -er y -est:

- los adjetivos monosilábicos añaden -er y -est (he is taller than his father es más alto que su padre; it is the highest building in Spain es el edificio más alto de España);
- los de tres o más sílabas van precedidos por more y most (he is more intelligent than his brother es más inteligente que su her-mano; the most intelligent boy of the group el chico más inteligente del grupo);

- Los de dos sílabas siguen una de las dos reglas anteriormente mencionadas. Los que acaban en -er o -y agregan -er, -est (cleverer, prettiest). Los terminados en -ful y -re suelen ir precedidos por more, most (more careful, most obscure);
- algunos son irregulares (véase el cuadro insertado a continuación).

El comparativo y el superlativo de inferioridad se forman con less y least respectivamente (less interesting menos interesante; the least interesting el menos interesante).

El superlativo absoluto se forma generalmente con los adverbios very, much y most (very polite muy cortés; much loved muy querido; most helpful muy útil).

El superlativo sólo se puede emplear en inglés cuando se trata de más de dos personas o cosas.

Comparativos y superlativos irregulares

Positivo	Comparativo	Superlativo
good	better	the best
bad	worse	the worst
little	less	the least
much	more	the most
many	more	the most
far	farther further	the farthest the furthest old	older elder	the oldest the eldest late	later latter	the latest the last

Much se usa con un sustantivo singular, many con un nombre plural.

Farther se refiere en general a una distancia y further a una progresión.

Elder y eldest indican el grado de antigüedad (his eldest girl), older y oldest el número de años (she is older than her brother).

Later, the latest tienen el sentido de «más reciente», mientras que latter, the last se aplican al último en una enumeración.

Numerales cardinales

Entre las decenas y las unidades no se usa nunca la conjunción and; a partir de 20 (twenty), los numerales se forman con el nombre de la decena correspondiente seguida de un guión y las unidades correlativas (twenty-one; thirty-two).

Después de million, thousand y hundred, los números inferiores a cien van siempre precedidos por la conjunción and (one thousand two hundred and fifty-two; one thousand and one).

Million, thousand y hundred son invariables, excepto cuando se usan como sustantivos con un sentido impreciso (thousands of men were killed). Lo mismo se aplica a dozen y score (I saw him scores of times).

Hundred, thousand, million, etc. van precedidos por a o one. A se emplea especialmente cuando se trata de una cifra redonda (a hundred women) y one si estos números van seguidos por otros (one thousand and two). Los números que indican el año suelen expresarse por centenas (in seventeen hundred en el año mil setecientos).

Numerales ordinales

En los números compuestos, el último elemento es el único en tomar la forma del ordinal (twenty-fifth). Los numerales ordinales se utilizan para expresar el orden (he is the third es el tercero; chapter the second el capítulo segundo), la cronología (George the Fifth Jorge Quinto; the nineteenth century el siglo diez y nueve) y las fechas (May the 25th, the 25th of May el veinticinco de mayo).

Adjetivos y pronombres

Pronombres personales

		Sujeto	Complemento	Reflexivo
Singular	1. ^a pers	I	me	myself
	2. ^a pers	you	you	yourself
	3. ^a pers	{ masc he	him	himself
		{ fem she	her	herself
		{ neut it	it	itself
Plural	1. ^a pers	we	us	ourselves
	2. ^a pers	you	you	yourselves
	3. ^a pers	they	them	themselves

Los pronombres personales no han de omitirse nunca en inglés. En una oración afirmativa, los que tienen función de sujeto se colocan delante del verbo (he bought a book compró un libro) y los que se utilizan como complementos van detrás del verbo o de una preposición (my brother took them mi hermano los tomó; he said to me that... me dijo que...). El complemento indirecto no ha de colocarse nunca antes del complemento directo (he gave it to me me lo dio). Empleado con verbos seguidos de una partícula, el pronombre complemento directo se debe poner entre el verbo y la partícula (give it up! ¡déjalo!).

El pronombre sujeto de primera persona singular va siempre en mayúscula (I am reading estoy leyendo).

It se emplea en construcciones impersonales (it is hot).

You we, they e it sirven para traducir el pronombre impersonal español se (it is rumoured that... se rumorea que...; we do not work on Sunday no se trabaja el domingo).

Los pronombres reflexivos se usan para reforzar el pronombre (he wrote it himself lo escribió él mismo) o cuando la acción del verbo recae sobre el mismo sujeto (he looks at himself in the mirror se mira en el espejo). Conviene indicar que no todos los verbos reflexivos en español lo son en inglés (quejarse to complain; equivocarse to be mistaken; sentarse to sit down; alegrarse to be happy, etc.).

El pronombre personal indefinido one corresponde a «uno» (one does not like to be beaten a uno no le gusta que le peguen).

Pronombres y adjetivos posesivos

		Adjetivos	Pronombres
Singular	1. ^a pers	my	mine
	2. ^a pers	your	yours
	3. ^a pers	{ masc his	his
		{ fem her	hers
		{ neut its	its own
Plural	1. ^a pers	our	ours
	2. ^a pers	your	yours
	3. ^a pers	their	theirs

Los adjetivos y pronombres posesivos varían con el poseedor y no con el objeto poseído (my books mis libros; Jane plays with her brother and her sister Juana juega con su hermano y su hermana; this book is mine, it is not yours este libro es mío, no es tuyo; these pencils are his, they are not mine estos lápices son suyos, no son míos).

Si el poseedor es indefinido, se usa one's (it is sometimes hard to do one's duty a veces es difícil cumplir con su deber).

El adjetivo posesivo se emplea con las partes del cuerpo y las prendas de vestir. En los mismos casos en castellano se utiliza el artículo definido (he hurt his foot se lastimó el pie; put on your jacket ponte la chaqueta). El pronombre posesivo precedido por of corresponde al adjetivo español mío, mía, etc. (a friend of yours un amigo tuyo).

Se puede reforzar la idea de posesión añadiendo own al adjetivo posesivo (this is my own pen, not yours esta pluma es mía y no suya).

Adjetivos y pronombres demostrativos

El adjetivo demostrativo es el único adjetivo que concuerda en número con el sustantivo que le sigue (I like this book me gusta este libro; I like these books me gustan estos libros).

La forma del pronombre sin que se pongan one, ones se emplea cuando el sujeto se expresa en la misma oración (this is his coat éste es el abrigo suyo; that is my house ésa es mi casa). En cambio, si se omite el nombre, es imprescindible utilizar el pronombre indefinido one, ones (do you prefer this one or that one? ¿le gusta más éste o ése?).

That y those seguidos por la preposición of se traducen por el de, la de, los de, las de (this is not my book, it is that of my sister éste no es mi libro, es el de mi hermana).

That y those seguidos por un relativo corresponden a el que, la que, los que, las que (those who are tired may have a rest los que están cansados pueden descansar).

Cuando se hace referencia a dos objetos ya mencionados, se suele emplear the former para el primero y the latter para el segundo (véase cuadro en la página siguiente).

Pronombres relativos

Los pronombres relativos tienen la misma forma en singular y en plural.

	Sujeto	Complemento	Posesivo
Personas	who, that	whom, that	whose
Cosas y animales	which, that	which, that	whose, of which

Adjetivos y pronombres demostrativos

Grado de lejanía (adverbios de lugar)		Masculino y femenino		Neutro
		Singular	Plural	Singular
here (aquí)	adj	this (este, esta)	these (estos, estas)
	pron	this, this one (éste, ésta)	these, these ones (éstos, éstas)	this (esto)
there (ahí, allí, allá)	adj	that (ese, aquel; esa, aquella)	those (esos, aquellos; esas, aquellas)
	pron	that, that one (ése, aquél; ésa, aquélla)	those, those ones (ésos, aquéllos; ésas, aquéllas)	that (eso, aquello)

No se puede omitir nunca el pronombre sujeto (the man who comes el hombre que viene). Sin embargo se prescinde frecuentemente del pronombre complemento (the man I saw el hombre a quien vi). Cuando éste es indirecto, la preposición se debe colocar después del verbo (the man I spoke to yesterday el hombre a quien hablé ayer).

El antecedente del pronombre relativo puede ser otro pronombre (he who came yesterday el que vino ayer).

— That tiene un sentido restrictivo (bring me the pen that is on the table, and no other tráeme la pluma que está en la mesa y no otra) y no ha de ser seguido por una preposición. Se emplea después de un superlativo, incluyendo first y last (it is the finest city that I have ever seen es la ciudad más bonita que jamás he visto), de un pronombre indefinido, de only y very o de un antecedente que incluye personas y cosas o animales (the people, catle and carts that went to market la gente, el ganado y las carretas que iban al mercado).

— Whose se usa únicamente cuando existe una relación de posesión (Peter, whose house we have visited, is American Pedro, cuya casa hemos visitado, es americano).

— What se emplea cuando el antecedente no queda expresado (tell me what you want to know dígame lo que quiere saber).

Adjetivos y pronombres interrogativos

	Adjetivos	Pronombres
		Sujeto	Complemento	Posesivo
Personas	what, which	who	who, whom	whose
Cosas y animales	what, which	what, which	what, which	whose Para las personas who se refiere a la identidad (who is this man? ¿quién es este señor?), what a la función (what is your brother? ¿qué es tu hermano? y which a la elección (which of these men did you see? ¿a cuál de estos hombres viste?).

En la lengua hablada se usa frecuentemente la forma who para el complemento referente a personas en vez de whom.

Cuando el pronombre va acompañado por una preposición, ésta se suele poner al final de la oración (whom did you play with? ¿con quién jugaste?).

Si la pregunta es indirecta no hay inversión del verbo (I asked him what he was doing le pregunté lo que estaba haciendo).

What se emplea también en expresiones exclamativas (what luck! ¡qué suerte!).

Adjetivos y pronombres indefinidos

Los principales adjetivos y pronombres indefinidos son each, either, neither, every, several, all, some, any, little, few, much, many, enough, no, not any, none, other, another.

- No y every sólo son adjetivos y none pronombre.
- Either significa una de dos personas o cosas.
- Al igual que either y neither, each y every van siempre seguidos por un verbo en singular; each tiene un sentido individual, mientras que every expresa una idea de colectividad (on each side de cada lado; on every side por todos los lados).
- Some se emplea siempre en oraciones afirmativas (leave us some oranges déjanos algunas naranjas) y a veces en frases interrogativas cuya contestación será afirmativa.

— Any se usa en oraciones interrogativas y negativas (do you take any sugar? ¿tomas azúcar?; I do not take any sugar no tomo azúcar), después de hardly, scarcely, barely e if.

— Los pronombres compuestos derivados de SOME, ANY, NO y EVERY son respectivamente something, somebody, someone, anything, anybody, anyone, nothing, nobody, no one y everything, everybody, everyone.

— Little y much se aplican a cantidades que no se pueden contar (he made little progress hizo pocos progresos).

— Few y many se emplean con cantidades numerables (he ate many cakes comió muchos pasteles).

— Other es invariable cuando es adjetivo y variable como pronombre (other examples otros ejemplos; show me the others enséñame los otros).

— Each other y one another se utilizan después de un verbo para expresar la reciprocidad. La primera forma si se habla de dos personas únicamente y la segunda si hay más de dos (the two cousins love each other las dos primas se quieren; the three cousins love one another las tres primas se quieren).

Preposición

El pronombre regido por una preposición tiene función de complemento (he spoke to me me habló). En las oraciones interrogativas y en las subordinadas introducidas por un pronombre relativo, la preposición antecede al pronombre o sigue al verbo (this is the girl to whom I spoke yesterday, this is the girl whom I spoke to this morning). Con «that» o cuando el relativo no queda expresado, la preposición se coloca siempre después del verbo (this is the girl (that) I spoke to).

Los sustantivos concretos usados en singular después de una preposición tienen que ir precedidos por el artículo indefinido (she went out without an umbrella salió sin paraguas).

El verbo que sigue a la preposición va siempre en gerundio (she came in without knocking entró sin llamar a la puerta).

La mayoría de las preposiciones existen como adverbios y muchas son también conjunciones (after, before, since, till).

Adverbio

Los adverbios de modo se forman generalmente añadiendo -ly al adjetivo (slow, slowly) y esto trae consigo las modificaciones ortográficas siguientes:

- los adjetivos terminados en -le, cambian la -e en -y (comfortable, comfortably);
- los acabados en -ll sólo añaden una y (full, fully);
- los terminados en -y sustituyen esta letra por una i antes del sufijo -ly (noisy, noisily);
- los acabados en -ue pierden la -e (true, truly).

Algunos adjetivos se usan como adverbios (fast, straight, tight, etc.).

Los principales adverbios de cantidad son little, much, almost, rather, quite, very, too, enough, etc.

Los adverbios de lugar más usados son above, across, along, around, away, back, behind, below, down, far, here, in, near, off, out, there, up, where, etc.

Los adverbios de tiempo más comúnmente empleados son after, again, ago, already, always, before, early, ever, formerly, late, never, now, often, once, seldom, sometimes, soon, still, then, today, when, yesterday, yet, etc.

Los adverbios de negación más frecuentemente utilizados son no, not, never, not at all.

Los comparativos y superlativos de los adverbios siguen la misma regla que los adjetivos. Algunos son irregulares.

Comparativos y superlativos irregulares

Positivo	Comparativo	Superlativo
well	better	best
badly	worse	worst
little	less	least
much	more	most
far	farther further	farthest furthest

El adverbio se pone antes del adjetivo, del participio pasivo o de otro adverbio, excepto en el caso de enough (she is very clever; it is good enough). Con un verbo transitivo suele colocarse después del complemento, excepto si éste es un infinitivo (he banged the door noisily; they kindly asked her to stay at their house). Cuando un verbo se construye con un auxiliar o un defectivo el adverbio debe seguir al primer auxiliar (I shall probably have finished tomorrow probablemente habré acabado mañana).

Verbo

División

Los verbos se dividen en:

- transitivos, cuando tienen complemento directo (I open the window abro la ventana);
- intransitivos, cuando no lo tienen (the window opened la ventana se abrió);
- reflexivos, cuando la acción recae en el mismo sujeto que la ejecuta. Se conjugan añadiendo un pronombre reflexivo de la misma persona que el sujeto (he looked at himself se miró);
- recíprocos, cuando representan una acción efectuada recíprocamente por dos o más personas. Si se trata sólo de dos personas, el verbo va seguido por each other (Peter and Joan love each other Pedro y Juana se quieren). En caso contrario se añade one another (the four cousins love one another los cuatro primos se quieren);
- impersonales, cuando sólo se emplean en la tercera persona del singular. En inglés van precedidos obligatoriamente por el pronombre neutro it y casi siempre se refieren a fenómenos meteorológicos (it is raining está lloviendo);
- defectivos, cuando se usan únicamente en algunos tiempos y se sustituyen por equivalentes para los demás. No llevan s en la tercera persona del singular del presente de indicativo, no van nunca precedidos por do u otro auxiliar, el verbo que les sigue está siempre en infinitivo sin «to» (excepto en el caso de ought) y el pretérito puede tener un significado de potencial (we could not hear if we had no ears no podríamos oír si no tuviéramos oídos). Tienen frecuentemente función de auxiliares.

Verbos defectivos	Significado	Equivalentes
I can, I could	capacidad	to be able
I may, I might	permiso, probabilidad	to be allowed futuro + perhaps
I must	necesidad, obligación, probabilidad	to have to
I will, I would	consentimiento	to want, to wish to
I shall, I should	obligación moral	to have to
I ought to	obligación moral, consejo

Los verbos need y dare pueden tratarse como verbos normales o defectivos en las oraciones negativas e interrogativas:

- auxiliares, cuando sirven para conjugar los demás verbos (véase «verbos auxiliares» más adelante).

Es necesario observar que los verbos no se construyen siempre de la misma manera en ambos idiomas. Muchos verbos intransitivos en inglés son reflexivos o pronominales en español (to sit down sentarse), algunos son transitivos en una lengua e intransitivos en la otra (to cross one's mind pasar por la mente; to ask for sth. pedir algo), otros no van seguidos por la misma preposición en los dos idiomas (to delight in something deleitarse con algo; he has profited by your advice ha sacado provecho de su consejo).

Voces, modos y tiempos

Voz Pasiva

Los tiempos de la voz pasiva se forman con el auxiliar to be y el participio pasivo del verbo conjugado (this picture was painted by Turner este cuadro fue pintado por Turner).

En inglés se emplea mucho más la voz pasiva que en español, que la sustituye generalmente la forma pronominal (the fire was seen from our house se veía el incendio desde nuestra casa) o activa correspondiente (this picture was painted by Turner Turner pintó este cuadro).

Cuando un verbo, como to teach, to tell, to show, to give, etc., tiene dos complementos, hay dos construcciones posibles para la forma pasiva (Mary told me a story, I was told a story by Mary, a story was told me by Mary).

Infinitivo

El infinitivo suele ir precedido por la preposición to. Se emplea como sujeto de una oración (to err is human errar es humano) o como complemento de la mayoría de los verbos (I wish to see you soon deseo verle pronto; my mother wants me to write to my brother mi madre quiere que escriba a mi hermano), después de adjetivos y sustantivos (it is difficult to understand es difícil de entender; it was time to get up era hora de levantarse), detrás de «to be» y «to have» para indicar la obligación (do you have to go home? ¿tienes que ir a casa?).

To se omite:

- después de auxiliares y defectivos, excepto OUGHT (I shall go iré; I may go puedo ir);
- después de los verbos de percepción (we saw them come les vimos venir);
- después de los verbos TO MAKE, TO LET, TO BID (he made them listen les hizo escuchar; let me sit here déjeme sentarme aquí; he bade them be silent les pidió que se callaran);
- después de las expresiones HAD BETTER, HAD RATHER y BUT (I had better go más vale que me vaya; I cannot but admire it no puedo dejar de admirarlo).

Gerundio y participio de presente

El gerundio y el participio de presente se forman de la misma manera, es decir añadiendo -ing al infinitivo sin to.

El gerundio ejerce la función de un sustantivo. Se usa como sujeto o complemento (she loves reading poetry le encanta leer poesía), después de todas las preposiciones, excepto TO (she is tired of walking está cansada de andar), detrás de algunos verbos que indican el principio, la continuación o la terminación de una acción (to keep singing seguir cantando) y de ciertas expresiones como to be worth, I can't help, I don't mind, do you mind?, it is no use y it is no good (this book is worth reading este libro es digno de leerse), cuando es precedido por un artículo, un adjetivo indefinido, un adjetivo o un caso posesivo (I like his singing me gusta su manera de cantar). También se emplea con verbos que expresan una intención o un gusto personal, aunque en este caso se puede utilizar también el infinitivo con to.

El participio de presente se usa en la forma progresiva (véase «Forma progresiva» en el apartado siguiente), como adjetivo (an amusing story una historia divertida) y en sustitución de una oración adverbial (fearing that they would recognize him... temiendo que le reconociesen...).

Forma progresiva

La forma progresiva se utiliza más frecuentemente en inglés que en español. Se forma con el verbo to be y el participio de presente del verbo (I am reading estoy leyendo). Se emplea para indicar que la acción se está realizando en el momento en que se habla o que se estaba efectuando en la época a la cual uno se refiere (he was reading estaba leyendo). Se usa también para expresar una acción que tendrá lugar en el futuro (we are leaving tomorrow nos iremos mañana), pero no puede hacerse cuando se trata de una acción de poca duración, habitual o instintiva.

Participio pasivo

El participio pasivo de los verbos regulares se forma añadiendo -ed al infinitivo.

Se emplea con to be para formar la voz pasiva y con to have para conjugar los tiempos compuestos del pasado. Cumple también las funciones de adjetivo.

Indicativo

El presente, que tiene la misma forma en todas las personas, excepto en la tercera del singular que toma -s o -es al final del infinitivo, indica que la acción se efectúa de una manera habitual (he goes to school every day va al colegio todos los días). Se emplea también para expresar una acción futura en proposiciones subordinadas que indican una condición o una idea de tiempo (when the weather gets a bit better, we'll all go to the beach cuando mejore un poco el tiempo, iremos todos a la playa).

El pretérito indefinido se forma en todas las personas añadiendo -ed al infinitivo. Se utiliza para una acción completamente terminada en el pasado (my watch stopped yesterday se me paró el reloj ayer). Empleado en la forma progresiva equivale al imperfecto español (she was wearing a green skirt llevaba una falda verde).

El pretérito perfecto se conjuga con el verbo auxiliar to have y el participio pasivo del verbo conjugado. Se usa para una acción que tuvo lugar en un pasado indeterminado (I have seen this woman somewhere he visto a esta mujer en alguna parte) o que se realizó en un período todavía sin concluir (I haven't finished my work yet aún no he acabado mi trabajo) o que no está terminada (he has been ill for a month hace un mes que está enfermo; he has been ill since Saturday está enfermo desde el sábado) o que acaba de realizarse (he has just arrived acaba de llegar).

El futuro se forma con el infinitivo sin to precedido por los auxiliares shall en la primera persona del singular y del plural y will en las otras. Actualmente will se suele aplicar a todas las personas. Sin embargo shall se emplea con la primera persona para pedir una opinión (shall I make the tea? ¿quiere que prepare el té?) y con las otras para ordenar o prometer algo (you shall leave the room at once les ordeno que salgan de la habitación inmediatamente).

El futuro inmediato se traduce por to be going to o to be about to, que significan «estar a punto de».

Potencial

El potencial simple se conjuga anteponiendo al infinitivo sin to los auxiliares should en la primera persona del singular y del plural y would en las otras. Actualmente would suele aplicarse a todas las personas.

Subjuntivo

En el inglés moderno este modo tiende a desaparecer. Tiene las mismas formas que el indicativo, excepto en el caso de la tercera persona del singular del presente que no lleva s. El auxiliar to be hace be en presente y were en pretérito para todas las personas.

Se emplea únicamente para expresar una hipótesis considerada ya como irrealizable (if I were you si estuviese en tu lugar) o un deseo (God save the Queen! ¡Dios guarde a la Reina!) y en algunas expresiones como be that as it may, come what may, etc.

El subjuntivo español se traduce generalmente por el infinitivo o el indicativo (véase THE SUBJUNCTIVE en SUMMARY OF SPANISH GRAMMAR) o mediante una forma compuesta con los auxiliares may, might y should (if he should come si él viniese).

Imperativo

El imperativo sólo tiene una forma propia, la segunda persona del singular y del plural, que corresponde al infinitivo sin to. Para las demás personas se usa «let» con los pronombres complementos (let us go vayámonos).

Forma frecuentativa

Se emplea para expresar una costumbre o una repetición. Se forma, en el presente, con will y el infinitivo y, en el pasado, con would o used to seguidos por el infinitivo (she will sit there hour after hour suele o acostumbra sentarse allí horas y horas; she would go for a walk every morning acostumbraba o solía dar un paseo todas las mañanas).

Forma enfática

La forma enfática se utiliza para insistir en la realidad del hecho que se afirma.

En presente y pasado, se forma añadiendo do conjugado, si no hay ningún auxiliar (he did transmit your request to her seguramente le transmitió tu petición), y se pronuncia con cierto énfasis el auxiliar en el caso contrario. En imperativo se construye siempre con do (do come and see me no deje de venir a verme; do have a cup of tea tome una taza de té, por favor).

Forma negativa

Para los auxiliares y defectivos se añade únicamente not (you are not, they could not).

En el caso de los demás verbos se coloca not entre el primer auxiliar y el verbo (I have not seen) en los tiempos compuestos y se pone do not, does not, did not delante del infinitivo sin to en los tiempos simples (he does not go, we did not go).

Los infinitivos y participios llevan la negación not antepuesta (not seeing her, not to go).

Sin embargo no se utiliza do con cualquier negación que no sea not (I saw nobody).

En la lengua familiar not se convierte en n't y se une al verbo (he doesn't think so; you musn't do that; don't go).

Cuando can va seguido por not hace cannot o can't (she cannot o she can't understand, she is too young no puede entender, es demasiado joven).

Forma interrogativa

Para los auxiliares y defectivos se invierten el sujeto y el verbo en los tiempos simples (is he a painter?; can he swim?) y el sujeto y el primer auxiliar en los tiempos compuestos (should he have been there?).

En el caso de los demás verbos se pone el sujeto entre do, does, did y el infinitivo (does he go?) en los tiempos simples y se invierten el sujeto y el primer auxiliar en los tiempos compuestos (would Peter have come?).

No se emplea do si la oración empieza con un adjetivo o un pronombre interrogativo con función de sujeto (who brought this letter?).

La forma interrogativa en negaciones se construye con el auxiliar seguido por not y un sustantivo o pronombre indefinido o demostrativo (is not John a good boy?; will not another do it?). Con los pronombres personales not se pone al final (is he not a good boy?), excepto si se utiliza la contracción n't (isn't he a good boy?).

Para la traducción del español ¿«verdad»? véase la observación que hay al final de esta palabra en el cuerpo del diccionario.

Observaciones sobre la pronunciación

La terminación -ed del pretérito y del participio pasivo se pronuncia como una d cuando el radical del verbo acaba con una consonante sonora o un sonido vocálico (filled, loved, moved, called, spared, sawed), como una t cuando el radical del verbo termina por una consonante sorda (brushed, scoffed, placed, remarked, passed, reached) y como id después de una t o una d (melied, glided).

Los verbos cuyo infinitivo acaba en -ce, -se y -ge se pronuncian con una sílaba adicional que suena -iz en la tercera persona del singular del presente de indicativo (dances, cleanses, changes).

Los verbos cuyo infinitivo termina en -ss, -x, -z, -sh y -ch añaden, en la tercera persona del singular del presente de indicativo, las letras -es que tienen el sonido de -iz (misses, fixes, fizzes, crushes, reaches).

Modificaciones ortográficas

Se duplica la consonante final de un verbo monosilábico cuando va precedida por una sola vocal y seguida por una terminación que empieza con una vocal (stopped). La misma regla se aplica a los verbos de dos o más sílabas si éstos llevan el acento en la última sílaba (preferred), con excepción de los que acaban por vocal y l (travelled), salvo parallel.

Si un verbo termina en -y después de una consonante, se cambia ésta en -i antes de añadir la terminación -es para la tercera persona del singular del presente de indicativo (he studies) y -ed para el pretérito y el participio pasivo (studied).

En cambio, cuando la -y va precedida por una vocal en el infinitivo, se forma la tercera persona del singular del presente de indicativo agregando -s (plays; says) y el participio de presente añadiendo -ing (playing; saying).

Si un verbo monosilábico acaba en -ie, esta terminación se convierte en -y antes de añadir -ing para formar el participio de presente (to die hace dying).

El pretérito y el participio pasivo de los verbos terminados en -o se forman agregando -ed a la vocal final (to halo hace haloed).

Verbos auxiliares

Be. Este auxiliar se emplea, al igual que ser, para formar la voz pasiva y la forma progresiva.

Se usa también como impersonal, en cuyo caso va precedido de there y corresponde a hay, había, hubo (there were twenty pupils había veinte alumnos).

To be equivale a tener cuando indica una medida, una edad, una sensación o un estado (the house is 100 feet high la casa tiene cien pies de alto; I am thirty tengo treinta años; they are hungry tienen hambre) y a estar al referirse a la salud (how are you? ¿cómo estás?). Seguido por to expresa una obligación o una probabilidad (we are to go to the theatre tonight debemos ir al teatro esta noche).

Have. Este auxiliar, equivalente al haber castellano, se emplea para formar los tiempos compuestos de todos los verbos.

To have equivale a tener cuando indica posesión, en cuyo caso va frecuentemente acompañado por got (his aunt has got a beautiful house su tía tiene una casa preciosa) y a tomar al aplicarse a alimentos (have a drink tome una copa).

Con el infinitivo o el participio pasivo significa mandar hacer (he had a new suit made mandó hacer un traje nuevo; he had the tailor make him a suit mandó al sastre que le hiciera un traje).

Expresa una obligación cuando va seguido por to (I have to go home tengo que ir a casa) y una preferencia con better o rather (I had better do it más vale que lo haga; I had rather do it preferiría hacerlo).

Do. Este auxiliar se emplea en las formas negativa, interrogativa y enfática de los demás verbos. Se utiliza también para sustituir un verbo ya mencionado (we did not take coffee, but she did no tomamos café pero ella sí; Peter came by train, so did John Pedro vino en tren y Juan también).

Se conjuga como un verbo regular pero hace does en la tercera persona del singular del presente de indicativo, did en el pretérito indefinido y done en el participio pasivo.

Los verbos defectivos (can, may, must, will, shall, ought to, dare, need) se usan como auxiliares (he will work trabajará).

UNIDADES
MONETARIAS

MONETARY UNITS

La unidad monetaria de Gran Bretaña es la libra (pound) [£], dividida hasta el 15 de febrero de 1971, fecha en que se adoptó el sistema decimal, en veinte chelines (shillings) [s] o en doscientos cuarenta peniques (pence) [d] y actualmente en cien peniques [p]. Existe además la guinea, empleada únicamente para los artículos de lujo y honorarios, que tenía un valor de veintiún chelines y ahora corresponde a ciento cinco peniques.

La unidad monetaria de los Estados Unidos y Canadá es el dólar (dollar) [$], americano y canadiense, que se divide en cien centavos (cents).

TEMPERATURA

TEMPERATURE

En los países de habla inglesa se utiliza la escala termométrica Fahrenheit en vez de la centígrada.

Para convertir los grados Fahrenheit en grados centígrados es preciso restar 32, multiplicar por 5 y dividir por 9. Así 212° Fahrenheit equivalen a 100° centígrados.

To convert centigrade degrees into Fahrenheit multiply by 9, divide by 5 and add 32.
